

The image is a book cover. At the top, there is a horizontal strip of a painting showing a close-up of green foliage. Below this, the author's name 'Patrice Foissac' is printed in a simple, grey, sans-serif font. The main title 'Saint-Cirq-Lapopie et ses habitants' is written in a large, bold, dark green serif font. Underneath the title, the subtitle 'Des origines à 1560' is written in a smaller, white, italicized serif font. The central part of the cover is dominated by a large, textured painting of a village built on a steep, rocky cliffside. A prominent church with a red roof and a bell tower is visible. The foreground shows a river with white rapids. The painting style is expressive and somewhat abstract, with visible brushstrokes and a rich color palette of greens, browns, and greys.
